Memory Palace By Kunzru Hari

A new work of fiction by Hari Kunzru, best-selling author of Gods Without Men, forms the basis of this innovative book and exhibition, in which reading a story is translated into a three-dimensional visual experience by leading typographers, illustrators and graphic designers. Hari Kunzru has conjured a dark vision of a future in which not just books but remembering itself is banned and a small group of renegade memorialists is all that stands in the face of total oblivion. From the point of view of one of their incarcerated members, Memory Palace takes us through his fragmented memories as he lies trapped in his cell, clinging to the belief that without memory civilization is doomed. An essay by the exhibition's curators, Laurie Britton Newell and Ligaya Salazar, unpicks the intentions and process behind this innovative project, while specially commissioned work by Robert Frank Hunter and drawings from the exhibition's collaborators illustrate the book.

Mcdougal makes some research previous to write this book. That book is very easy to read; you can find the point easily after reading this article book.

Bobby Hanke:

As a scholar, I exactly feel bored to reading. If their teacher inquired them to go to the library as well as to make a summary for some reserve, they are complained. Just tiny students that have reading's heart or real their hobby. They just do what the educator wants, like asked to go to the library. They go to generally there but nothing reading very seriously. Any students feel that looking at it is not important, boring and also can't see colorful images on there. Yeah, it is for being complicated. Book is very important in your case. As we know that on this time, many ways to get whatever we really wish for. Likewise word says, many ways to reach Chinese's country. So , this Memory Palace can make you truly feel more interested to read.
