

Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America)

By Adam Green

Download now

Read Online →

Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America) By Adam Green

In Selling the Race, Adam Green tells the story of how black Chicagoans were at the center of a national movement in the 1940s and '50s, a time when African Americans across the country first started to see themselves as part of a single culture. Along the way, he offers fascinating reinterpretations of such events as the 1940 American Negro Exposition, the rise of black music and the culture industry that emerged around it, the development of the Associated Negro Press and the founding of Johnson Publishing, and the outcry over the 1955 lynching of Emmett Till.

By presenting African Americans as agents, rather than casualties, of modernity, Green ultimately reenvisioning urban existence in a way that will resonate with anyone interested in race, culture, or the life of cities.

↓ Download Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Ch ...pdf

📄 Read Online Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black ...pdf

Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America)

By Adam Green

Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America) By Adam Green

In Selling the Race, Adam Green tells the story of how black Chicagoans were at the center of a national movement in the 1940s and '50s, a time when African Americans across the country first started to see themselves as part of a single culture. Along the way, he offers fascinating reinterpretations of such events as the 1940 American Negro Exposition, the rise of black music and the culture industry that emerged around it, the development of the Associated Negro Press and the founding of Johnson Publishing, and the outcry over the 1955 lynching of Emmett Till.

By presenting African Americans as agents, rather than casualties, of modernity, Green ultimately reenvisioning urban existence in a way that will resonate with anyone interested in race, culture, or the life of cities.

Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America) By Adam Green Bibliography

- Sales Rank: #1124189 in Books
- Published on: 2009-04-01
- Released on: 2006-11-15
- Original language: English
- Number of items: 1
- Dimensions: 9.00" h x .90" w x 6.00" l, 1.00 pounds
- Binding: Paperback
- 328 pages

 Download Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Ch ...pdf

 Read Online Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black ...pdf

Download and Read Free Online Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America) By Adam Green

Editorial Review

Review

“Brilliant. By looking at cultural work and the reconstitution of community in wartime and postwar black Chicago, Adam Green provides a window into the emergence of modern black urban life. Whether he’s exploring the fusion of sacred and secular blues or the writings of Chicago-school sociologists, Green beautifully demonstrates how the ‘cultural entrepreneurs’ of the period offered lessons for living, utopian dreams, a route to self-transformation, a means of survival, momentary challenges to white supremacy even as they sometimes reinforced black subordination, and the basis for a black economy.”

(Robin Kelley, author of Freedom Dreams: The Black Radical Imagination)

“Selling the Race is the most important study of 1940s black Chicago to appear in sixty years. It will change ways of thinking and writing about black urban history.”

(James Gregory, author of The Southern Diaspora: How the Great Migrations of Black)

“As an alternative to what he sees as the ‘hard empiricism’ in humanistic and social science research, Green emphasizes ‘the city as a site of creativity, rather than constraint.’ In doing so, he makes a series of significant contributions to knowledge that will influence broad interdisciplinary audiences in African American studies, urban and labor studies, public history, and museum studies. Rich and convincing, Selling the Race will also appeal to a wide range of scholars interested in cultural policy and decision making.”

>

(Joe William Trotter Jr., Mellon Professor of History at Carnegie Mellon Unive)

"Selling the Race is a terrific book, one that should have a long historiographical influence. . . . All social scientists and humanists will find Green's book worthy of a serious and close reading."

(Andrew E. Kersten H-Net Review)

"Much like the race sellers and buyers in his book, Green imagines a much wider horizon of innovative ideas that shaped a national race culture."

(Erik S. Gellman Journal of Illinois History)

"From slavery's origins in 1619 Virginia to the current crises of family disorganization, poverty, and violence, African Americans all too often appear as victims of U.S. society. Taking a different approach, Green (NYU) emphasizes the vibrant, positive cultural life of black Chicago in the years immediately preceding the rise of Martin Luther King Jr. and the nationally recognized Civil Rights Movement. . . . Recommended."

(Choice)

"An important additon to African American urban and business history."

(Robert E. Weems Jr. Business History Review)

"Green communicates forcefully the problems and possibilities posed by an era of tremendous social and political change and potent forces of resistance to those changes. This technique reflects Green's broader effort to situate African Americans at the centre rather than at the margins of modernity, and, likewise, as agents in its manifestation rather than victims."

(Rachel Roseman Economic History Review)

"The writing is crisp, the topics were chosen with great thought, the research is thorough, and the arguments are logical. This is a marvelous book, a must-read for everyone interested in the history of Chicago, as well as mid-century African American history."

(Perry R. Duis Michigan Historical Review)

"An intellectually rigorous, original work of scholarship that produces two important advances in African American studies. First, the book offers a thick description of mid-century Chicago-based African American cultural production. . . . Second, the book posits African American modernity as an emergent process of equivalence between city, or community, and nation."

(Bill V. Mullen American Historical Review)

About the Author

Adam Green is associate professor of history at the University of Chicago.

Users Review

From reader reviews:

Mary Edick:

Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America) can be one of your nice books that are good idea. Many of us recommend that straight away because this book has good vocabulary which could increase your knowledge in terminology, easy to understand, bit entertaining but nevertheless delivering the information. The author giving his/her effort to place every word into pleasure arrangement in writing Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America) however doesn't forget the main stage, giving the reader the hottest and also based confirm resource details that maybe you can be considered one of it. This great information can drawn you into new stage of crucial thinking.

Jackie Lafond:

Are you kind of busy person, only have 10 or 15 minute in your moment to upgrading your mind talent or thinking skill even analytical thinking? Then you are having problem with the book in comparison with can satisfy your limited time to read it because this all time you only find e-book that need more time to be examine. Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America) can be your answer given it can be read by you actually who have those short spare time problems.

Barbra Poole:

This Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America) is a brand new way for you who has interest to look for some information given it relief your hunger details. Getting deeper you in it getting knowledge more you know or you who still having small amount of digest in reading this Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America) can be the light food for yourself because the information inside this book is easy to get by means of anyone. These books produce itself in the form that is reachable by anyone, that's why I mean in the e-book type. People who think that in book form make them feel drowsy even dizzy this reserve is the answer. So there isn't any in reading a guide especially this one. You can find actually looking for. It should be here for a person. So , don't miss it! Just read this e-book variety for your better life in addition to knowledge.

Jason Buckley:

As a university student exactly feel bored to be able to reading. If their teacher expected them to go to the library or to make summary for some publication, they are complained. Just very little students that has reading's soul or real their hobby. They just do what the trainer want, like asked to go to the library. They go to there but nothing reading significantly. Any students feel that studying is not important, boring along with can't see colorful images on there. Yeah, it is for being complicated. Book is very important for you personally. As we know that on this era, many ways to get whatever we want. Likewise word says, many ways to reach Chinese's country. So , this Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America) can make you experience more interested to read.

Download and Read Online Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America) By Adam Green #JZUT2O6HGS5

Read Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America) By Adam Green for online ebook

Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America) By Adam Green Free PDF d0wnl0ad, audio books, books to read, good books to read, cheap books, good books, online books, books online, book reviews epub, read books online, books to read online, online library, greatbooks to read, PDF best books to read, top books to read Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America) By Adam Green books to read online.

Online Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America) By Adam Green ebook PDF download

Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America) By Adam Green Doc

Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America) By Adam Green Mobipocket

Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America) By Adam Green EPub

JZUT2O6HGS5: Selling the Race: Culture, Community, and Black Chicago, 1940-1955 (Historical Studies of Urban America) By Adam Green